

African-American Mathematics: A Thread Though History

eighth in the annual series of symposia
“Without Number: Mathematics and Culture”

Continental Breakfast and Poster Session:
Showcasing the work of African-American Students
10:00-10:45 am

Welcoming Remarks 10:45
Kenneth Elmore, Dean of Students

Panel Discussion 11:00-12:30
African-American Mathematics: History for the Future

Luncheon Reception: 12:30-2:00

Keynote Address 2:00-3:00
Donald St. Mary (University of Massachusetts Amherst)
“Reflections on becoming a mathematician – a personal perspective”

Coffee Break 3:00-3:30

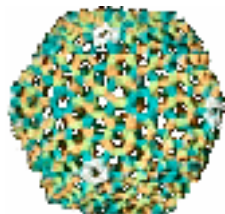

Panel Discussion 3:30-5:00
African-American Mathematics: How to Succeed as Students
Confirmed Panelists: John M. Belcher (Boston University), Terrence Richard Blackman (Medgar Evers College), Donald King (Northeastern University), Roscoe Giles (Boston University), Alfred G. Noël (University of Massachusetts Boston), Vanessa Valdez (Social Justice Academy and Upward Bound)

Saturday, April 28, 2007

Boston University, CAS Building (College of Arts and Science)
685-725 Commonwealth Avenue
Room B12 (access basement from Tsai Ctr. 685 Comm. Ave.)

Start Time: 10:00 am – End Time: 5:00 pm

Support for this event from the Boston University Humanities Foundation, as a Humanities Enhancement Project of the Boston University Student Chapter of the Mathematical Association of America, and from the Boston University Department of Mathematics and Statistics is very gratefully acknowledged.

No fee, but please register here: <http://math.bu.edu/people/ep/AFRAMATH07/>